

MEMPHIS APPEAL

From the San Francisco Monitor.

THE TRUE CALL OF CHIVALRY.

In his ancestral castle,
Where banners were crowned,
With walls that glowed brightly,
With halls that shone,
With towers that led
In Pampolina's first.
The knightly spirit
Thus induced to the Walls of the town that pass
In slow succession by,
Till he reached the spot
Trooped over through his brain,
And then he forth,
Upon his phantom plumb.

"Ho! bring the volumes older,
The tales of woe remain,
And still of magic issue,
The willows wail again,
From tower to dragon keep,
The quiet chivalry here,
They bring their dust and old,
But 'tis no legend fam'd,
No scenes of joy and misery,
No almighty men of power, grim,
No almighty men of power,

He turns the paper idly,
The page old and quaint,
Of many a hero's story
But 'tis his languid gazing
A flesh spreads o'er his cheek,
Well nigh that valiant older,
The noble deeds he render there
And well the truth-inspired series
The prowess of those knights of God,
His self-sustaining souls.

Over that ancestral castle,
And rustling like the gleaming fawn
He bows a noble chivalry,
His name becomes the Christian's joy,
On Heaven's deathless tablet,
Lo! angel downy robes,
A servant of their Lord,
In every land of regions,
In every land of every clime,

And lo! the soft-sounding strains
Loyola's sainted soul.

Again, bearing an officer in the Spanish army, being of high rank and distinguished his attendants to make him some old romantic scenes of convalescence. None, however, could the Lives of the Souldiers be more interesting than the Lives of the Souldiers. So strong was he with the holy arms that he was soon made a Captain in the Spanish Army. Then determined to follow their glorious example and the army, and devoting himself to the immortal cause of God, he joined the Society of Jesus.
